“The children at the school, they were fine up to a point but then they seemed to get hold of the idea that I was an evacuee and they started mocking me, chanting things like, well actually my second name’s Keith and somehow they called me Keith at the school so Jeffrey Keith they take it and they started, I remember them chanting “Keith’s an evacuee, Keith’s an evacuee” and I was, course I didn’t want to be one I kept saying when I go home, back to my mummy and daddy, or something, and that was the kind of thing I said practically daily according to one of my mother’s letters, but that all changed in the course of time and I became more settled at.”
