

Jim Homer

“Get up in the morning and have our, do our ablutions and have our breakfast and then we used to go to school at normal time, nine o’clock, and then it was, when we came to lunchtime we would go and have our dinner, then everyone, all the lads had to go back to the dormitories and spend one hour on their beds, or bunks it was, from one o’clock ‘til two. Then from two o’clock ‘til five we were allowed out, we could go on the Cannock Chase we could go where we wanted to as long as we were back in time for tea, which was at five o’clock. And then five o’clock we used to have our meal and then it was a wash and change and get ourselves ready for school at seven o’clock and then from seven ‘til nine and then it was showers and in to bed and that was it, that was your day, there was no television in those days.