

Joyce Sidebotham

I think we were the children... I don't remember mixing with children from Wetley Rocks. Maybe the area where we were living as well was a bit isolated, so we weren't able to make friends with the children from the village. Because as far as I remember it was only a small place, you know. So I don't remember. No-one, certainly other children never came to the farm. There were just, well, four of us by this time, this boy and this girl went back after a week. So, and again, six weeks, I suppose we weren't there long enough to make friends. And I do know that the other two mothers with their girls came back not an awful long time after that either.