“Me grandma used to send us some lovely material, she used to send us clothes from India, which were a lot bigger than our, you know than us ‘cause we were only children then, and mother had to cut them down to make clothes for us. And she always did it for the anniversary, when there was a Sunday school anniversary because we always went to church didn’t we? And Sunday school. Even if it was only the Salvation Army. But they kept us going, them and the W.V.S., so I never pass their boxes so long as I’ve got money in my purse.”
